The Army of the Potomac Moving.

The Movement Commenced at Daybreak on Monday Morning.

Heavy Masses of Artillery and Other Troops Crossing the River at Sunrise.

GEN. HOOKER'S RECENT FRIGHTS.

Possible Retreat of the Rebels to the North Anna and Pamunkey Rivers.

We find the following highly highly important announcement in the National Intelligencer of yesterday morning:

"We shall not be announcing anything, we presume, not already knowing the city, when we state generally that Gen. HOOKER commenced, at daybreak yesterday morning, a forward movement. Heavy masses of artillery and other troops were crossing the river at sunrise."

We append to this the following paragraph from a Washington letter in the Commercial Advertiser, dated the 27th:

"Gen. HOOKER is not idle. During the long storm just ended, he made a feint of crossing at Kelly's Ford, up the river, and another at Port Royal, down the river. Now whether he will advance at one of these points, or elsewhere, no one knows. The General is understood to keep his own counsels, and when he is ready to start, hard fighting may be expected, unless the only route retreat is the North Anna and Pamunkey Rivers, which is thought to be their line of defense."

THE LATEST REBEL REPORTS.

A Fredericksburgh correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch writes, April 26:

"No news here. The sun and wind to-day have dried the roads very much. We are quiet, but expectant, hopeful and confident. My private opinion still is that the Yankees are leaving."

The Enquirer of the 27th has the following:

THE ENEMY IN FAUQUIER.

"The enemy have occupied the County of Fauquier in large force—it is reported from 20,000 to 25,000. They are said to have 15,000 infantry and 5,000 cavalry. Their infantry camp was, at last accounts, on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, below the Warrenton Junction, and their cavalry picket the Rappahannock. It is reported that a small force of the enemy made a dash up to Washington, Rappahannock County, but that is not certain. Skirmishing along the river was daily taking place."

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

BELLE PLAIN, VA., Saturday, April 25.

I send you by telegraph, yesterday, the main particulars of Col. MOSSOW's late expedition to Port Conway and Port Royal. I am able to add something more of interest, showing the affair to have been so executed with great celerity under the circumstances, it being performed during the great storm with the roads in a terrible state, and the streams much swollen.

The force consisted of two regiments, the Twenty-Fourth Michigan, Col. MOSSOW, and the Fourteenth Brooklyn, Col. FOWLES—the entire force being under command of the former officer. One section of Battery B, Fourth U. S. artillery, under Lieut. STEWART. The force left camp at 3 P. M. of Wednesday, the 22d, and marched to Port Conway, distant 10 miles, by 10 P. M. They bivouacked behind the village, and, by direction, built no fires, and kept very quiet. The approach of our forces was conducted so secretly that our own cavalry pickets in Port Conway were not aware of the presence of our men until they marched into the town on Thursday morning.

Col. MOSSOW rested his men until 2½ A. M. of the 23d, when he began to construct his pontoons, which had been brought down in wagons, to the number of eighteen. The pontoons used were of a new pattern. They are composed of a light framework, put together at the moment of use, and then set on a large piece of canvass, which is wrapped, and looped and lightened around it, by means of loopholes and ropes. One of these pontoons will weigh, when ready for launching, but six hundred pounds, while one of the old wooden style of boats weighs not less than two tons.

Our men put these boats together out of sight of the enemy, and then carried them down to the river and launched them. Owing to the unfamiliarity of the men with the method of putting them together, this work was not accomplished until about 6 A. M. Sergeant FARRIS, of the Engineer corps, superintended the construction. A heavy rain which prevailed also retarded operations. But a few moments after 6 they were all ready to start across the stream.

The river here is about six hundred yards wide, and is a deep, placid and beautiful stream. Owing to the rain, a mist or fog existed, which partially surrounded the opposite shore, rendering objects indistinct, and it was currently supposed that a force of rebels was there, concealed in their rifle pits, and that our men would have a warm time in crossing.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, Col. MOSSOW selected three hundred men from the two regiments, being less than half his force, and launching twelve of the pontoons, started for the opposite shore. Every man certainly expected to be greeted by a shower of bullets from the enemy, who was supposed to occupy the rifle pits on the top of the slope, which rose from the town to the river's edge. But not a shot was fired, and our men landed without the slightest resistance. So quiet and sudden was the entry of our troops that the enemy, who occupied the town with cavalry, had barely time to reach their horses, and they left one end of the village as our forces entered the other. Our boats landed at the upper end of the town, and the troops immediately deployed through it. The rebels found their horses not a moment too soon, and fled at high speed down the Bowling Green Road, abandoning their wagon train and a number of horses, which fell into our hands. Several prisoners were also taken, among whom was a wagon-master, who bemoaned his fate with deep oaths at his cowardly comrades, who left him and his train to capture. The wagons were all destroyed by order, as it was raining so hard that it was impossible to burn anything. The forms were searched, and a valuable mail capture, which, I may add, has given Gen. HOOKER information of great importance, as the letters were nearly all for the army.

After an occupancy of the town for nearly three hours, Col. MOSSOW received information that a heavy force of the enemy, infantry and artillery, were approaching by the Bowling Green road, and having accomplished all that was possible, he re-embarked his men, and crossed back to this side without loss.

The force that thus appeared was known to be encamped back of Port Royal, some four or five miles, and the prisoners stated that it was part of JACKSON's command, who were between that point and Bowling Green.

Our artillery was favorably planted on this side of the river, though there was no occasion for its use.

The weather was so exceedingly bad that little could be done after crossing the river. But very few white people were seen, it being early in the day, and the weather being so stormy that Col. MOSSOW is of the opinion that he came and went without the knowledge of many of the citizens. Negroes were numerous and communicative, giving information freely, and expressing great joy at seeing our men.

The only fortifications at Port Royal are a continuous rifle-pit in front of the town, on the top of the slope which runs to the river's edge; also, rifle-pits on each flank of the village, and in the rear of the place two or three embankments which look like field works.

The village is described as being very pretty and very quiet, never having been visited by the ravaging hand of war, until now. The country round about is open and comparatively level, for two or three miles, and then it becomes more hilly.

Col. MOSSOW started on his return about 11 A. M., and by 7 P. M. was back again in camp, having marched 36 miles in 29 hours, during 22 of which a furious rain-storm prevailed, rendering the roads and streams almost impassable. C.

THE WAR IN ALABAMA.

Demonstrations upon the Extreme Left of Bragg's Army.

The Operations of General Dodge at Bear Creek.

A Severe Battle and Defeat of the Enemy.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BEAR CREEK, ALABAMA, Saturday, April 18, 1863.

This day closes a short series of demonstrations upon the extreme left of BRAGG'S forces that may be (and probably are) a prelude to movements of great magnitude. What the plans are would be unwise to tell at the present juncture. The rebel General has been for some time past uneasy for the safe possession of his chief reliance for supplies for his army, the rich valleys of the Tennessee in the vicinity of Florence and Tuscumbia. Anything menacing that rich region, or threatening to cut him off from his most valuable source of supplies, will annoy him greatly, and render it necessary for him to take measures to keep up communications, thus necessarily drawing forces from his main body, and leaving him weaker to resist the forces of ROSECRANS.

The forces under Gen. DODGE left Corinth on the 15th inst., and about noon to-day reached within ten miles of Tuscumbia. By an artful movement of the General, the enemy were deceived as to the place of crossing the stream called Bear Creek, which is about seventy yards wide, rather deep, and quite swift. An engineer corps has constructed a bridge since the troops crossed, which was only yesterday, and it is now ready for use. A force of about eight hundred rebel cavalry were awaiting the attempt of our forces to cross, but were drawn off by the firing of our pickets (two squadrons) upon the rebel pickets, at a ford below, and while they were rushing to the supposed place of crossing, our cavalry effected the passage at the point selected. As the forces advanced yesterday, their progress was disputed at every step, and in the afternoon, quite a battle closed the affair for the day.

The rebels, three or four thousand in number, formed line of battle of the concave form, facing nearly West. Our forces, consisting of about one-half or two-thirds of that number, also formed a concave or crescent form of line of battle, two pieces of artillery and about 500 or 600 cavalry forming the centre, while the infantry horns of the crescent, under cover of demonstrations from the centre, were secreted in ravines and woods on the right and left. The line being complete, Col. COWEN commenced the onset by driving a blow from the centre with his cavalry upon the enemy's centre. He was met stubbornly and retired gradually, often making show of resistance, while the enemy were being drawn within the horns of our crescent, all the while steadily lapping around both flanks of our charging force, and but for the impendent haste of a single regiment is prematurely firing, would have been completely in our power. When the rebels were saluted by this unexpected volley, they fled incontinently, but were met in their retreat by the left regiment of the line, and sent pell-mell toward their own left, where they were met by another wing of the National line, and saddles were emptied at a fearful rate, when they fled in every direction. This closed the fighting for the day.

Two brigades of infantry sent from Huntsville have reinforced the enemy at Tuscumbia. How the enemy will be handled will appear in a few days. How he has suffered from his treatment at the hands of our forces cannot now be correctly estimated; but his loss in killed is known to be much greater than ours. We lost four killed and a proportionate number wounded; also, some 50 or 60 prisoners, and two pieces of artillery; one of the latter was retaken. The prisoners captured were the entire guard of the rebel prisoners we had captured, and had been left too far in the rear of the main body of the advance to receive their support. The rebels dashed from the woods upon them, and dashed in the woods with them eluded our pursuit.

Among the killed on our side was the gallant Capt. CAMMON, of the Twelfth Illinois infantry. Among the captured was Lieut. KANE, of the Ninth Illinois infantry, who had the same misfortune both at Shiloh and Corinth. BOYD.

THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURGH.

The Battery Opposite the City in Full Operation—Effects of the Shells—The New Canal a Success.

Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.

IN SIGHT OF VICKSBURGH, April 19, via CAIRO, April 25, 1863.

The battery on the levee opposite the City of Vicksburg is in full operation and working splendidly. For several days the guns have been trained upon the depot and public buildings. Yesterday a large shell entered the large depot building and exploded, levelling the greatest portion of it to the ground. The enemy have fired several shots in return, most of which struck the iron casemates but glanced off without doing any injury.

Guns are now being placed to command the Court-house.

There are reports that a division has been sent to Davis Plantation, opposite Carthage, to oppose the landing of our troops.

A steamer goes into the canal at Duckport to-day, intending to reach New-Carthage to-morrow. The canal is a valued success.

Nothing has been heard from the fleet which ran the blockade a few days since.

AN ARRIVAL FROM GALVESTON.

CAPTURE OF A REBEL COMMODORE.

NEWS FROM ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

The steamship Blackstone, from New-Orleans on the 19th inst., arrived at this port at an early hour yesterday morning. Her news is no later than was received by the Fulton, but it furnishes details of the operations of Gen. BANKS in the Teche country not brought by that steamer.

The Unionists of New-Orleans were in the highest state of glee, while the "registered enemies" and "loyal traitors" were correspondingly depressed over the successes of Maj.-Gen. BANKS. Many of the "secesh" here have been quite bold recently, under the inspiration of hopes that the rebels would soon recapture the city. The operations of Gen. BANKS had somewhat changed their tone.

It is said that the rebels were sending large forces from Port Hudson to Jackson. The "secesh" say these forces are to go to Mobile, and others think they are going to Charleston.

The U. S. supply steamer Circassian arrived at New-Orleans on the 17th inst., from Galveston, having on board a number of prisoners recently captured by our blockaders at Sabine Pass—among them was Commodore FOWLER, who commanded the steamers which captured the Morning Light and Velocity off that Pass. The Circassian brings no news of interest.

On the 14th instant an expedition from Gen. DUDLEY's brigade went up the river, crossed the point of land opposite Port Hudson, and communicated with Admiral FARRAGUT. Mr. GARROW, Private Secretary of the Admiral, who had previously come down with dispatches for Gen. BANKS, accompanied the expedition. They found the Admiral in good spirits, and believing that the enemy had but four days' supplies at Port Hudson. Col. ELLET, with the ram Switzerland, was still in company with the Mary Boyd and Albatross.

The blockade of the Red River and the movements of the army under the command of Gen. BANKS toward the same point, will tend materially to cut off all supplies that the rebels have been receiving from Texas and West Louisiana.

MOVEMENTS OF THE LAND FORCES.

Correspondence of the New-Orleans Era.

PATTERSONVILLE, Saturday, April 11, 1863.

The order having been issued on Friday evening last for the troops to be ready to move early the next morning, every preparation had been made, and the troops were in waiting for orders to march on Saturday morning.

Gen. WEITZEL's division was the first to cross. It was stationed in the upper part of Berwick City, the artillery commanding the town. Soon after it arrived two companies of cavalry were posted on the road above as picket guard and skirmishers.

At noon of the 11th the order was given to advance toward Pattersonville. Within half an hour after the order was issued, Gen. WEITZEL's brigade started on its way, taking the advance. The two companies of cavalry were sent to scout a short distance before the head of the column. The Eighth Vermont regiment, Col. STORES, had the right of the line.

Upon reaching the bend above the city, three regiments were marched by the left flank into a cornfield, and then moved forward, partly as skirmishers, and the rest by flank, in column, as the country and the proximity of the enemy demanded. The situation of the country was favorable for presenting a strong front to the enemy. The Atchafalaya formed a natural boundary of operations on the northern side, and a dense, impenetrable forest, three-fourths of a mile distant, running parallel with the river, skirted the fields. In the interval between these two lines a strong column was marched, the night of the advance brigade resting on the Atchafalaya, and the left extending to the woods, the artillery keeping the road which ran close to the river bank.

The advance brigade halted on a plantation. At the sugar-house there was a fine cistern of water.

Proceeding from the sugar-house while WEITZEL's cavalry were in the extreme advance, a charge was made by four hundred rebel cavalry upon them. Meeting with a firm front, they thought best to refrain from close conflict, so they retreated by a cross road, and rode out of sight.

At this moment the gunboat Clifton came up the river, and was hailed by Gen. WEITZEL. She was ordered to proceed a half mile further, and shell the rebels if they came in sight. A report was circulated that a small battery had been planted at that distance ahead. No battery was discovered, but a force of infantry and cavalry were compelled to retreat by a few shots from the Clifton. The two boats then accompanied the Clifton, carrying troops, which were landed opposite Pattersonville.

Arriving at Pattersonville, at dark, the troops bivouacked for the night in a corn-field. Gen. WEITZEL and Staff quartering at a house near by.

ON THE BATTLE-FIELD ABOVE PATTERSONVILLE, Monday morning, April 13, 1863.

The divisions of this expedition bivouacked on the field on Saturday night, at a short distance above Pattersonville. A strong guard was posted to prevent surprise.

Early on the morning of the 12th, the line of battle was formed near the mouth of the Teche, the right held by the Eighth Vermont regiment, resting on the Teche, the left resting on the woods. Next to the Eighth Vermont, Capt. BAUMANN's company, First United States artillery, with two 10-pound rifled Parrott guns, and four 12-pound brass pieces. While the line of battle was forming, the rebels formed their line, consisting of both infantry and cavalry, at the opposite end of the field, about a mile distant.

Before our advance had commenced to move forward in line of battle, and while the cavalry and some artillery were proceeding very slowly along the road near the bayou, some sharpshooters opened fire from the opposite bank, keeping themselves concealed by the large trees on the outskirts of the forest.

Four 20-pound Parrott guns of the Eighteenth New-York battery, Lieut. CROSBY, were at once stationed near the bayou, and commenced shelling the woods. A few shell dispersed the riflemen, and no further demonstrations were made by them. Soon after a pontoon bridge was swung across the Teche, near its confluence with the Atchafalaya. Co. K, of the Forty-second Massachusetts regiment, was stationed there to guard it. A section of the First Maine battery, Capt. BRADBURY, was sent across it, and proceeded down the road on the opposite bank, together with the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth New-York regiment of Infantry.

At noon, orders were given for our troops to move on the enemy. The order of the advance was push as to secure the greatest safety from any surprise by the enemy.

Upon reaching ride range of the enemy's position, the forces were halted and the infantry laid down upon the ground, although some of the officers, and the brave commander of the advance, Gen. WEITZEL, remained calmly in the saddle. To the right of the line the First United States Artillery, Capt. BAUMANN, was stationed, while Capt. CARMOW's Sixth Massachusetts battery was stationed to the left, both arranging their pieces to the same point.

The rebel fortifications extended from the Teche across a narrow opening between it and the woods. Here they had a heavy battery planted, and as soon as the pieces were brought into position the ball was opened. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the firing commenced. Meanwhile the Diana (the gunboat recently captured from us by the rebels) came down to the head of the Teche, and taking the range of BAUMANN's artillery, commenced a most galling fire upon it. At the same time a fire was kept up against this battery by the rebels from two other points. But our men stood their ground manfully. Every man worked energetically at his pieces, or battled commanding of the day. Three men were killed belonging to his company, and less than half a dozen wounded. Two horses were killed, and two caissons damaged, and lost for a while, but afterwards retaken.

Capt. CARMOW's battery maintained an incessant fire from its station near the woods. Our men were in easy range of the rebel cannon, but by a singular good fortune, most of the shot and shell burst beyond them. Only some three or four men in our ranks were killed. Our ammunition gave out just before dark, and we were compelled to cease firing.

The artillery on the opposite bank directed a fire upon the rebel works, although they did not continue it for any length of time. Gen. BANKS, with his staff, was continually on the field, giving his personal attention to the movements made.

The casualties during the engagement were not very severe. Of the Twenty-fifth New-York, unfortunately for the regiment, one of the wounded was Adjt. LAWRENCE. Although his wound was not serious, yet it forced him to keep off the field during the rest of the attack, which he seemed to regard as the hardest lot imaginable. The rebels did not fire with much accuracy, for the most part taking a high range, and bursting their shells high in the air. It was reported that three of their cannon were dismounted during the action. Eighteen prisoners were taken from them, including Drs. W. H. FARRAR and R. M. TAYLOR, of the Fourth Texas cavalry. Their regiment arrived two days ago, and had their officers had on new uniforms. Among those killed was Gen. WEBSTER's line—which had lain behind the spot where the rebels first dropped in and retreated—fell back a short distance, and bivouacked for the night.

The results of this battle weighed on the side of victory. The rebel works were not carried. Our infantry made no attempt to storm them; but everything down on our side was part of a slow, yet irreversible victory.

At about 8 o'clock on the morning of the 13th, the cannonading was recommenced. The enemy opened the firing, and received the same bombardment. The first fire was from the Diana, which had come down the Teche and taken position on a line with the rebel fortifications.

Two 20-pound Parrott guns were immediately sent to a point in range of the boat, and at once began shelling in that direction. In a short time the position became too hot, and the Diana was taken back, causing no further trouble during the day. At 9¼ o'clock an advance of the infantry was ordered. After proceeding a short distance, they were halted for a time, the rebel batteries remaining silent for the moment. Thirty picked men from Company E of the Second Massachusetts cavalry, under command of Lieut. PERKINS, were sent round to the left and front to draw their fire, so that their position could be told, as they were continually changing from one place to another. This move had the desired effect. A terrific fire was opened from several points along the breastwork, scattering pieces of shell and grape and canister almost as thickly as the drops of an April shower.

Capt. CARMOW's Sixth Massachusetts battery was planted near the centre of our line, while Capt. BAUMANN's company First United States artillery took the right. Our men then moved slowly forward, our batteries maintaining an incessant fire upon three different points whence the fire of the enemy came. One was directed ahead, that is to the centre of the earthworks running from the Teche into the woods. Another was at the right of the works, and still another at a sugar-mill on the extreme right. The one at the sugar-mill was dislodged for a short time, but it came back again afterward. About noon the rebels made a sortie near the woods, to outflank the left of the line. The Twelfth Connecticut regiment and Seventy-fifth New-York gave them a volley of rifle balls, and drove them back. Several were killed on both sides during the sortie. The enemy repeated this attempt three times, but were driven back each time.

At noon the gunboat Clifton came up as far as a bridge opposite the Bethel Place. She would have gone ahead and engaged the enemy's batteries at closer range, had not some torpedoes been discovered in the Teche, near the bridge. Three were found and removed in a small boat. One of them was exploded by some of the Clifton's men, with a report as loud as that of a cannon. Not knowing what infernal machines might be hidden in the stream, the Clifton was anchored, and opened fire upon the right of the rebel batteries with perceptible effect, silencing some of their guns at that place by her bow chaser. She continued her fire during the afternoon.

During the most hot firing, the greatest injury happened to the regiments on the right of the line, those on the left having the protection of a ditch to conceal themselves. Capt. DUGANNA held his battery in reserve, and waited until the other batteries were becoming short of ammunition, before he opened fire.

During the afternoon the fire of artillery gradually became closer and closer, until the two opposing batteries were for a short time within a few rods of each other, and the men within rifle range of the batteries.

Simultaneously with this sharp work on the south side of the Teche, a skirmish was going on on the northern side. There were some intrenchments on this side in extension of those on the other. From this position a line of sacks ran along the borders of a large canefield. On these woods some four or five dozen rebel cavalry posted themselves to prevent any movements on that side of the bayou. A portion of Col. GOODNOW's brigade, consisting of the Twenty-first Massachusetts, Col. GOODNOW; the Thirty-eighth Massachusetts, Col. INGRAHAM, and the One Hundred and Fifty-sixth New-York, were sent across to drive them back to the rear of their intrenchments. A section of artillery accompanied them. Upon reaching their position, a large number of skirmishers were deployed in the high cane, which kept them well concealed. They were skirmishing with the enemy in a guerrilla style of fighting for most of the afternoon.

The Clifton was continually sending huge shells whizzing through the air above and beyond them into the rebel works. In the latter part of the afternoon, probably while they were making preparations to evacuate, the enemy began to slacken their fire, keeping but two or three guns in action. They had evidently suffered severely. A round shot of ours was seen to strike the bed of one of their guns and bend the gun, gun-carriage and caisson into a ditch. The result of the day's fight, as was proved the next day, was most successful. Six batteries, partly of very powerful cannon, were used in the fight. The rebels had a strong armament. The artillery duel lasted from 4 o'clock on one day until night of the next, the darkness alone intervening, and causing a cessation of operations.

The loss thus far ascertained on our side was as follows: 4th Wisconsin regiment, 6 killed and 7 wounded; 173d New-York regiment, 2 killed and 4 wounded; 8th Vermont regiment, 2 killed and 7 wounded; 132d New-York regiment, 3 killed and 26 wounded; 16th New-York battery, 2 wounded; 114th New-York regiment, 2 mortally wounded and 6 slightly wounded; 12th Connecticut regiment, 8 killed and 15 wounded; 160th New-York, 9 killed and 1 wounded; 75th New-York regiment, 2 killed and 13 wounded; 1st United States battery, 1 killed and 2 wounded. Total, 34 killed and 76 wounded.

Very early on the morning of the 14th our forces were again ordered to advance, expecting a renewal of the bloody scenes of the day before, but firmly determined to carry the enemy's works at once at any hazard. But upon feeling the position of their intrenchments there was no response. The rebels had taken flight under cover of the darkness of the night, and made their escape.

The scene within—along the road—the capture of ammunition and clothing of a whole camp and all its equipage—the unburied dead—scenes by the way to Franklin—the meeting with Lieut. ALLEN and the officers of the Diana—the capture of nearly three hundred rebel prisoners—the destruction of the Diana and the Queen of the West, and Gen. GROVER's victory, together with other items of interest, will follow in another letter I shall write to-day. HORATIUS.

[The letter alluded to was published in the TIMES of Monday last, having come to hand in advance of those which we give above.]

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR RIFLE CANNON.

ORDNANCE OFFICE, WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, April 21, 1862.

Proposals will be received at this office, until 4 o'clock P. M., on the 26 day of May next, for the manufacture and delivery of THIRTY CAST-IRON RIFLE CANNON, of the calibre of three and a half inches. These cannon are each to weigh about 1,875 pounds. They are to be made in quite exactness to the drawings which will be furnished, and which may be seen at any United States arsenal. They are to be cast hollow and cooled from the interior. They are to be subject to the regular United States proving and proof, and none are to be received or paid for but such as are accepted by the United States inspector as to the reception or rejection of any of them is to be final and conclusive.

Bidders will state the time they propose to deliver the first cannon, and the number they will deliver weekly thereafter. They will also state where they propose to manufacture the cannon, and the price per pound for the finished cannon, delivered at the place of shipment nearest to the foundry where cast.

No bid will be entertained except from regular founders, evidence of which, and of their ability to fulfill a contract, if awarded to them, must accompany the bids, unless the bidder is known to this office.

Any bidder obtaining a contract will be required to enter into bonds with not less than five sureties, in the penal sum of $5,000 for the faithful fulfillment of his contract, in all respects.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids if the prices are deemed too high, or if, for any cause, it is not thought for the public interest to accept them. Proposals will be sealed and addressed to "Brig.-Gen. J. W. RIPLEY, Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C.," and will be indorsed, "Proposals for 35 Rifle Cannon."

JAMES W. RIPLEY, Brigadier-General, Chief of Ordnance.

PROPOSALS FOR HAY, STRAW AND GRAIN.

ASSISTANT QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, FORAGE DEPARTMENT, corner of G and 23d-sts., WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16, 1862.

Written proposals are invited for furnishing HAY, STRAW, OATS and CORN for the use of this depot, to be delivered at the railroad depot, or at any of the Government wharves in this city.

The proposals to be addressed to the undersigned, and they should state the quantity of each article offered, also the price and the time of delivery.

Proposals will be received for five thousand (5,000) bushels of Corn or Oats, and fifty (50) tons of Hay or Straw, and upward, unless it should be for the interest of the Government to contract for a less amount.

All grain to be put up in good sacks, of about two (2) bushels each, which are to be furnished at the cost of the contractor.

The Hay and Straw to be securely baled.

All Grain and Hay offered to be subject to a rigid inspection by the Government inspector.

Contracts will be awarded from time to time to the lowest responsible bidders, as the interests of the service may require. Good security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of any contract made under this advertisement.

Payment to be made at the completion of the contract.

S. L. BROWN, Captain and A. Q. M. U. S. A.

OFFICE OF THE SIGNAL OFFICER, WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15, 1862.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED at this Office until 4 o'clock, P. M., on the 30th day of April, 1862, for furnishing to the Signal Department the following articles:

200 Three-inch Refracting Telescopes, complete.
200 Two hundred Marine Glasses, complete.
200 Two hundred and fifty Compasses.
40 Forty Telescopes, extra size, with stands.

The first delivery to be made about the 15th day of June; fifty cases to be delivered at Government map depot; the balance to be delivered on or before the 1st day of August, 1862.

A bond, with good and sufficient security, will be required.

Proposals from disloyal persons, or where the bidder is not present to respond to his bid, will not be considered.

The names of firms should be stated in full, with the names of the members of the firm.

All bids to be accompanied by two guarantees, addressed to Signal Officer of the Army and indorsed "Proposals for Field Signal Equipments."

Form of Guarantee.

We, ——, of the county of —— and State of ——, do hereby guarantee that —— is able to fulfill the contract in accordance with the terms of his proposition, and that should his proposition be accepted he will at once enter into a contract in accordance therewith.

(Should the contract be awarded to him we are prepared to become his sureties.)

(This guarantee must be appended to each bid.)

The responsibility of the guarantors must be shown by the official certificate of the clerk of the nearest district court, or of the United States district attorney.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals if the prices are deemed too high, or if, for any cause, it is not deemed for the public interest to accept them.

Models will be on exhibition at the office of the Signal Officer for fifteen (15) days from date.

TWO CONTRACTORS.—PROPOSALS WILL BE received until the 14th day of May, 1862, at 12 M., for filling, grading and paving Broad-street, in West Troy, from the north side of Auburn-street to its southern terminus, including the gutters thereof.

The street to be excavated, regulated and graded under the direction of the Village Engineer, and to be paved with trap-block design pavement—each block measuring on the face, or upper surface, not less than four nor more than seven inches in length, and not less than four nor more than five inches in width, and in depth not less than six nor more than eight inches—to be laid on a prepared bed of clean sand, or river gravel, not less than one foot in depth.

The trap-blocks are to be laid at right angles to the line of street, and with such rise or arch as the said Surveyor may direct—each course to be of blocks of a uniform width and depth, and no joint in any third course shall be broken by a lap of least two inches. The whole of the work to be done in a manner more particularly described in the blank forms of contract and specifications to be furnished to persons who may desire to bid for the same. Security will be required in the sum of ten thousand dollars for the faithful performance of the work.

The proposals for this work will be publicly opened at the room of the Board of Trustees, in said village, on the 15th day of May, at 12½ o'clock P. M., and the contract awarded to the lowest bidder who shall comply with the terms of the proposal, and at the time in the notice.

Blank forms of contract and specifications, together with the Surveyor's estimate of materials, will be furnished on application to JAMES DUFFY, President of said village.

JAMES DUFFY, } Joint Committee.
J. DUNLOP, JAMES ROY, JOSEPH McLEAN, J. P. PHELPS,

Dated at WEST TROY, N. Y., April 20, 1862.

PROPOSALS FOR $250,000 CENTRAL PARK IMPROVEMENT FUND STOCK OF 1876.—Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office until THURSDAY, the 30th day of April, 1862, at 2 o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened for the whole or any part of the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of Central Park Improvement Fund Stock authorized by charter, eighty-five of the laws of the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty, and by an ordinance of the Common Council, approved by the Mayor April twenty-five, one thousand eight hundred and sixty.

The said Stock will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable quarter yearly, and the principal will be redeemed November one, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six.

The proposals will state the amount of Stock desired, and the price per one hundred dollars therefor, and the persons whose proposals are accepted will be required to deposit with the Chamberlain of the City, within five days after the opening of the bids, the sums awarded to them respectively.

On presenting to the Comptroller the receipts of the Chamberlain for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive certificates for equal amounts of the par value of the Stock, bearing interest from the dates of payments.

Each proposition should be sealed, and indorsed "Proposals for Central Park Improvement Fund Stock," and inclosed in a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.

The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids, if the interests of the Corporation require it.

MATTHEW T. BRENNAN, Comptroller.

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, April 1, 1862.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We find in the National Intelligencer of yesterday morning, the announcement that Gen. HOOKER commenced a movement on Monday morning at daybreak, and that at sunrise heavy masses of artillery and other troops were crossing the river. No intelligence of this kind has reached us over the telegraph wires, but we have good reason to know that it is true. Indeed, the knowledge that the Army of the Potomac had commenced a movement, was in our possession on Monday evening, but in deference to the supposed wishes of the Government, we forbore to publish it.

Some excitement was created yesterday by reports that the rebels, in considerable force, were committing depredations in Western Virginia, on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and even threatening again to invade Pennsylvania—either Wheeling or Pittsburgh being the point aimed at. These reports seem to have for a basis the fact that considerable force of guerrillas, under JENKINS, had appeared at Morgantown, Va., on the Monongahela River, and near the State line of Pennsylvania. It is not probable that they intended coming any further north. Other detachments of rebels appeared at the same time in other parts of Western Virginia, near the railroad line, but prompt measures, as we learn from the Wheeling Intelligencer, were taken to intercept them, and it is not believed that they have been able to effect much.

We have this morning, from our correspondent, an account of the battle fought on Bear Creek, Alabama, on the 18th inst., between a National force from Corinth, under Gen. DODGE, and the rebel forces on the extreme left of BRAGG's army, guarding the valley of the Tennessee in the vicinity of Florence and Tuscumbia. Our forces effected the crossing of Bear Creek by means of a little simple strategy, and subsequently met the enemy in superior force on a position selected by themselves. The advantage of position, however, did not avail them, and they were badly whipped by superior generalship.

By the arrival at this port of the steamship Blackstone, from New-Orleans on the 19th, we have received further details of Gen. GRANT's brilliant operations in the Teche country. The news, however, is no later than was received by the Fulton and published on Monday.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Anglo-Saxon, which left Liverpool on the 16th, with 300 passengers and a crew of 94 men, was wrecked four miles east of Cape Race at noon on Monday, during a dense fog, and while a heavy sea was running. The number of lives lost is not yet known. Before she commenced breaking up, seventy-three persons escaped by ropes and spars, and twenty-four were in one of the life-boats. Two other life-boats were launched and filled with passengers, and subsequently picked up by a steam-tug, and taken to Picton, but a raft, containing seven persons, was missing. The deck broke up about an hour after the ship struck, and nothing but the mizzen-mast was left standing. Several persons were clinging to the rigging at the time, but no assistance could be rendered them. The Commander of the Anglo-Saxon is supposed to be among the lost. Only about 130 persons are known to have been saved.

By an arrival at this port from Vera Cruz, we have the particulars of an attack made by guerrillas upon the workmen engaged in constructing the railroad for the French. The attack was made upon the main camp, where about 500 men were employed, and some twelve men were killed and twenty wounded, the rest escaping into the woods and to the military camp at Tigeria. The guerrillas then stripped the camp of all valuables, with some $12,000. During the succeeding night they robbed and plundered all the other camps.

The reception of the Seventh and Eighth regiments New-York Volunteers, on their return from the war, yesterday, was one of the most enthusiastic demonstrations ever witnessed in the City. The friends, relatives and acquaintances of the soldiers turned out in thousands to welcome them home, and the scene all along the line of march was enlivening in the extreme, as cheer upon cheer greeted the war-worn veterans and their tattered flags. The regiments were entertained respectively at the Steuben House and Dramatic Hall.

The Board of Aldermen met at 1 o'clock P. M. yesterday, and concurred in adopting Councilman BRANDON's resolution authorizing the Committee on National Affairs to receive the returning two-years' City regiments on their arrival home, and to extend to them a cordial welcome. [The Committee will not, as heretofore, give most attention to the officers of the regiments, but to the men, giving them a nice collation at the Park Barracks.] The resolution to increase the salary of the Public Administrator (Dr. BRADFORD) from $1,200 to $5,000 per annum, was concurred in. Mr. FROMME objected to the increase as being extravagant and unwarrantable at this time; stated that there were nice perquisites to the office, but declared himself personally friendly to the Doctor. Mr. HARDY said the present salary of $1,200 was fixed in 1830, when the business of the office was small compared with its present business, and the increase would only put the office on a footing with the Corporation Attorney, in respect to salary. The Board also concurred in rescinding the resolution adopted in 1850, permitting the Hudson River Railroad Company to run a dumb engine on their road in the City as a test of its utility. Adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M. on next Monday.

The Board of Supervisors met at 3 o'clock P. M. yesterday. A communication was received from the Comptroller stating the action of the Legislature in relation to the County Budget for the year. The item of $38,600 for advertising was reduced to $30,000; that for Harlem Bridge from $201,250 to $133,250; and that for "salaries, executive departments," from $82,050 to $72,050, striking out the amounts which had been inserted to give the Mayor a salary for county services and to give extra compensation to the late Comptroller. The draft of an ordinance conforming to these alterations accompanied the communication. The Board added to it $24,000 for their salaries for the year—$2,000 a-piece—as authorized by a special law, and then adopted it. A message was received from the Mayor, vetoing the resolution directing the Committee on Annual Taxes to advertise for all persons enrolled as State Militia in this City to pay the tax of $1 each to the County Treasurer, and to employ a person to collect the same from delinquents. The Mayor says the $1 designed to be collected is by law made a fine—not a tax—that the law also makes it the duty of the Receiver of Taxes to collect the fine in each case, and that the Receiver will make the collections as soon as the Supervisors furnish a list of the names of persons from whom the fines are due. The Board adjourned to 3 o'clock P. M. next Tuesday.

MARYLAND.

The Detroit Free Press has a story about the escape into Canada of REDY BARRERE, son of the notorious GEORGE N., with dispatches for the rebel agents in Europe. It says that he passed himself off as a deaf and dumb man until he had made his way across the lines, and was safe upon British soil. As REDY BARRERE was in Fort Lafayette at last accounts, it is evident that the alleged dispatch bearer was some other individual.

The Sioux Indians, 307 in number, who were condemned to death for the part which they took in the Minnesota massacres, but who were reprieved, have been removed to Rock Island, where they are to be kept at hard labor, probably for life, under a military guard.

The Stock Market was again very active on the speculative list yesterday, and prices firm at the close. Gold Coin fluctuated from 148½ to 151; leaving off 148½ ⅌ cent., or about the same as on Monday night. Exchange 164@164½. The receipts of the Treasury were $2,000,000 on deposit at 5 ⅌ cent. and for the 5.20 year stock.

A moderate business was transacted in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs and Provisions, yesterday, at drooping prices; as also in Groceries, Hides, Leather, Fruit, Hops, Cotton and Wool at uniform rates. Refined Petroleum was in lively demand. Hay was in fair request. Whisky was more sought after, and was firmer. Tallow was depressed and declining. Hemp, Seeds, and Tobacco, were inactive. The freight market was also very tame.

The Live Stock Markets have been overrun with cattle this week. Sheep are very scarce, while the supply of calves and hogs is just about equal to the demand. The market does not require a large amount of meat as warm weather approaches, and the high prices necessarily charged by butchers leads to an economical use of meat. Fresh shad and eggs, now abundant and much cheaper than meat, take the place of beef on many tables. Beeves number 4,303 for the week, about 4,500 of which were sold at Forty-fourth-street alone. These were more than butchers needed, and, to induce them to buy, a decline of ½c. ⅌ lb. was conceded at the outset, and another ½c. before the close. The light call for Government use, only 100 head, and the absence of a shipping demand, left nearly all the stock for butchers. It was with difficulty that all were sold. A very few choice animals brought 12c. ⅌ lb., net weight. The majority of good retailing steers went at 11c.@11½c., though some very fair cattle had to be sold at 10½c. to close them out. The market averaged near 10½c., the cattle being mostly of good quality....Sheep are scarce and high again. Several lots of fat sheep have been sold at 11c. ⅌ lb., live weight. Fair sheep are worth 10½c. if unshorn, and 6½c.@7c. if deprived of their fleeces....Live hogs are plenty, and unchanged in price.

The Democracy and the War.

The following paragraph is from an article in the National Intelligencer:

"While the election was pending in the great State of New-York, no journal was more decided than the daily TIMES in affirming that the success of the Democratic ticket would be a defeat of the Union cause. Now we find the editor of that journal holding the following language. We quote from a speech made by Mr. RAYMOND on Monday last, at a great meeting held by the Union Leaguers in the City of New-York:"

[Here follows an extract from Mr. RAYMOND's speech, the point of which is that he had never doubted the substantial loyalty of the great body of the Democratic party: and the Intelligencer adds:]

"And in the columns of his journal, Mr. RAYMOND announces the same confidence in the steadfast loyalty of the great mass of the Democratic party, while according to them the same right of independent judgment which is exercised by all other free-born Americans."

The Intelligencer has a double object in this reference. It seeks first to signalize the concession to the Democrats involved in the extracts quoted;—and it aims incidentally to note the change of sentiment on the part of the Editor of the TIMES, which that concession is supposed to imply. Without attaching any undue importance to the charge of inconsistency, which flippant politicians often wield with such an air of confident triumph, we beg to say that the Intelligencer will find, in the changed circumstances of the country and the Democratic party, a complete justification for the change in our tone concerning them.

In the fall of 1862, the Democracy of this State took an attitude of thinly disguised hostility to the prosecution of the war against the rebellion. They nominated for Governor an eminent and able statesman who had publicly taken the ground—acted upon by Mr. BUCHANAN during the closing months of his Presidency—that "successful coercion would be quite as revolutionary as successful secession:"—and the whole tone and tenor of his speeches, and that of his prominent supporters, down to the very eve of the election, was in harmony with this damaging and disloyal sentiment. Mr. VAN BUREN, his ablest popular advocate, took the ground that instead of prosecuting the war to the complete annihilation of the rebel military power, we ought to offer terms of peace after the capture of Richmond, and if they were rejected, allow the Southern States to "go in peace." This was then the position of the Democratic party in this State. The whole aim of that party was to secure a popular verdict against the Administration, and to bring the war to a speedy end, even at the cost of a separation of the Union.

We did insist that the triumph of the party on such a basis would be virtually a defeat of the Union cause, and we did everything in our power to prevent such a result. We have nothing to retract and nothing to regret in the course we then pursued, and the justice of our judgment in the matter was vindicated by the result. The triumph of the Democracy was everywhere regarded as a "defeat of the Union cause." Lord LYONS so reported it, on the authority of the Democratic leaders who "sought interviews" with him, to his Government at home. The London Times so regarded it. The Southern rebel Press treated it as a defeat of the war policy, and as holding out hopes that the Democrats of the North would insist on conceding to the Southern rebels the independence they desired.

But very soon after the election was over, the Democrats of the North sought to escape from the false position in which their leaders had sought to place them. The Southern Press scoffed at their well-meant efforts at compromise and conciliation. Gov. SEYMOUR found that he was rapidly drifting into dangerous fellowship with WOOD, BROOKS, VALLANDIGHAM and other leaders of the Copperhead faction. VAN BUREN, BEADY, DALY and other Democrats, who felt their patriotism compromised by the company in which they found themselves, with a prudent boldness repudiated all sympathy with the disunion faction which had usurped the name and used the machinery of the Democratic party. The Loyal Leagues, which aimed to develop, apart from all political differences and all party divisions, the loyal, patriotic devotion to the Union of the great mass of the American people, began to exercise a decided and happy influence. And the general result was to bring the active, working elements of the Democratic party into an attitude of thorough and hearty support of the Government in its prosecution of the war. And that is the position which, according to the best authorities, that party now intends to occupy.

We need not say that it has our hearty approval. If maintained in good faith and with resolute vigor, it insures the speedy overthrow of the rebellion and the consequent restoration of the Union and Constitution. It guarantees us against the commotions which so many have feared from the execution of the Conscription law, and places all the resources of the country, in men and money, at the command of the Government, to be used under the restrictions of the Constitution and the laws for the suppression of the rebellion. This is precisely what the country needs; and we hail with intense satisfaction every indication that we are again to have the whole people of the loyal States heartily united in their efforts to maintain the integrity of the Union and the supremacy of the National flag.

Rumored Rebel Advance upon Wheeling.

Whenever the Union army is about to strike a blow at the rebels in Virginia, their astute leaders try to lessen its force by creating a diversion in some unexpected quarter, at the very moment of attack. The Shenandoah Valley has been a favorite field for the display of this sort of rebel tactics during the past two years. But that ground is too familiar now for a successful repetition of the peculiar strategy which Stonewall JACKSON has made famous.

But if we are to believe the rumors that came thronging to us yesterday, the same game is playing upon us again, but now on a more remote theatre. The report now is that a serious rebel demonstration, headed by the redoubtable JACKSON, of course, is about to be made on Wheeling or Pittsburgh—a divergence of supposed objects wide enough to be entirely conclusive as to the incompleteness of all information on the subject. The advance of the enemy was manifested, naturally enough, so the story went, by the interruption of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad west of Cumberland.

Without waiting for a full account of the transactions upon which the rumor in question has been built, we venture to discredit it in its most material part. We think it altogether unlikely that any large rebel force has been detached under Stonewall JACKSON, or any one else, to go meandering through the mountains of Northwest Virginia and Western Pennsylvania, in quest of adventures around Wheeling or Pittsburgh. Such a march would be long and devious—it must have been made in good part, during the inclement two months past, when the movement of any army through Virginia has been deemed impracticable. Witness the enforced inactivity of HOOKER's army, mud-bound alone, if you doubt.

Then again, there would be no adequate motive for such a piece of strategy on the part of the rebels. Neither Wheeling nor Pittsburgh is a vital Union point. Either city might be taken and no capital injury be suffered. But in order to seize an insignificant, or at most a secondary advantage, the rumors of yesterday would require us to believe that LEE had sent off his ablest General and a strong corps, to be far distant from cooperation with him, just at the moment when he would have a right to expect Gen. HOOKER on the march to Richmond. It is preposterous to suppose that LEE would expose Richmond in order to seize Wheeling. And it would be equally preposterous for the rebels to think that HOOKER would turn aside from his advance upon Richmond because Pittsburgh might be menaced. The rebel demonstrations down the Shenandoah Valley were dangerous because they threatened Washington. But a demonstration in Northwest Virginia would only stimulate to an immediate advance upon the weakened army defending Richmond. Gen. HOOKER could hardly be better pleased than to know of a verity that Stonewall JACKSON is on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad west of the Cumberland—which he would not have rolling stock to use—or in some other equally inaccessible region, at the present opportune moment, when the roads and the skies invite him to an onward march upon the enemy, sheltered behind the Rappahannock.

STUPIDITY OF REBEL TACTICS.—It is said that the rebel demand on Gen. McNEIL, at Cape Girardeau, Mo., to surrender his command, was signed "by order of Maj.-Gen. STERLING PRICE," of C. S. A. It was manifestly intended to make our troops and the country believe that the recent raid in Southeast Missouri was a formidable invasion, under the personal direction of STERLING PRICE. It was calculated that the prestige of his name would stimulate the disloyal population of the State, and at the same time dispirit the Union people and forces.

The result proves the folly of the leader of the rebel band in building hopes on any such slender foundation. That leader was MARMADUKE, a former citizen and slaveholder of Salina County, Mo. STERLING PRICE had nothing to do with his raid. The force he had in hand was about three thousand—not 20,000 as lyingly proclaimed. Instead of capturing Ironton or Cape Girardeau, as intended, the band has been twice whipped, once by McNEIL, and again by Gen. VANDEVER, and has been driven in disorder and with heavy losses, precipitately back into the swamps and toward the Arkansas line.

The unmilitary character of a rebel invasion of Southeast Missouri from Arkansas we pointed out several days ago, in first noticing the appearance of rebels below Ironton. If they aimed to capture Ironton, they became liable to a flank and rear attack from Cape Girardeau. If they attempted to take Cape Girardeau, they were equally exposed to a rear attack from Ironton. And the last is precisely what happened. VANDEVER came down from Ironton in their rear, just after they were repulsed from Cape Girardeau, and compelled their dismantlement and humiliation.

The Army in Motion.

The Washington National Intelligencer, of yesterday, makes prominent the announcement that Gen. HOOKER commenced a forward movement of his army at daybreak on Monday morning. "Heavy masses of artillery and other troops were crossing the river at sunrise." At what precise point our army has crossed, or is crossing, the Rappahannock, we are not told; but the Washington correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser, of this City, states that HOOKER has made a feint of crossing at Kelly's Ford up the river, and another at Port Royal down the river; "but," says this correspondent, "whether he will advance at one of these points or elsewhere, no one knows."

We shall add nothing at present to these statements already published, doubtless by authority of the Government; but we may say we have reason to believe from other sources, that the Intelligencer's announcement is correct. It is supposed HOOKER's design is to perform a flank movement upon Fredericksburgh. And if he make the movement we have heard indicated, it is of a nature that must speedily bring on a general action.

Reception of the Returning Regiments.

The Seventh and Eighth regiments of New-York Volunteers were very heartily and gladsomely welcomed by the City yesterday afternoon, on their return from their two years of war and work in the National service. The regiments had about one-half the number of men in their ranks that they had when they left us at the close of April, 1861, during the period of the "great uprising," and a considerable number of these were volunteers who had joined the regiments at various dates after they entered the field. The men were much changed in appearance from what it was the day of their departure. Fresh white faces had become bronzed; soft flesh had become firm—muscle had taken the place of fat; there was a serious, firmly-set, imperturbable, fearless, soldierly countenance, instead of the light-hearted expression of the early days; there was a steady step, and a military carriage, although, as the regiments were virtually disbanded, and the men were physically exhausted, they did not perform their tramp through the City precisely in the style of a dress parade. There were evidences of battles, of marches, of discipline—of Winter encampments without accustomed shelter or covering, of campaigns without sufficient food. The burning sun of Eastern Virginia in the first sweltering Summer; the frosts and snows and winds of the Alleghanies in the ensuing Winter; the Chickahominy struggle of last year, and the three widely distant and sanguinary campaigns that followed that work—each and all had left their imprint on the forms and characters of these brave citizen soldiers of the Republic—most of whom first saw the light and grew to manhood by the hills and rivers of the Teutonic Fatherland. As they marched up Broadway, their friends and the onlooking recalled many things that they had read during the last two years. They recalled many a sturdy fight, many a valiant deed, many a risk and many a sacrifice of life and limb for freedom and national unity. The Press of the City had made note of all their movements and engagements, ever since they took the field, and every intelligent newspaper reader—that is, about every grown person in New-York—could bring to mind scenes in the brief history of the regiment which touched their pride, their sympathy and their patriotism. Any temporary complaints, any minor criticism which may from time to time have been made, was forgotten in the admiration of their two years' heroic devotion.

The welcome which the returning soldiers received from the citizens shows that their services are appreciated by those who have enjoyed the benefit of those services. We welcomed them as comrades, as well as citizens—for we are all soldiers now. For the fallen among their comrades and ours we grieve even while we greet the living; and we prepare to press on by every means in our power the great battle yet before us.

One thing—some may think it a trifle, but it is not so to an honorable soldier—had wounded the feelings of the men severely on leaving the army, and it was too evident that they felt it keenly yesterday—the action of the Secretary of War in sending them home without the arms which they had borne through so many conflicts. It was a mean thing, and by that word we characterized it when first we heard of it. How could they march through the City as soldiers without their muskets? They bore them hence to the field, and unless they had dishonored them, they should have been permitted as soldiers to bear them back. It was one of those stupid and unaccountable blunders in the treatment of our volunteers which our military and quasi-military authorities seem doomed to be perpetually guilty of. It was one of those blunders which no man of sense ever falls into, and which proves its instigators to be ignorant of human nature and reckless of the soldier's feelings. There was no necessity for it, as we have tens and hundreds of thousands of spare muskets now in the country. We hope the President will see to the rectification of this error as regards the other returning regiments. This is no time to crush the soldier's pride, and these are not the men to try such an experiment upon.

THE PAPER-MAKERS' COMBINATION.—There is now no want of paper stock in the market; in fact, there is a heavy stock in the hands of dealers, and the recent high prices have not been maintained. At the present price we believe that paper [illegible] fair margin for profit.—Boston Transcript.

The Paper-makers' Combination are trying to remedy this state of things, by agreeing to run their mills on "three-quarters" time. In this way they hope to diminish the supply and enhance the price. Three or four of their prominent members, we understand, have already bolted from this attempted dictation. Whether Messrs. BUTLER and WHITE, who, at the outset, repudiated all sympathy with any such attempts to control prices, and denied that they would ever be made, are among the bolters, we are not aware. In the course of a few days we shall be able to show the consumers of paper in this country what kind of paper can be imported from abroad, at a reasonable price. If our paper-makers expect to retain control of the market, they must do it hereafter by fair competition with foreign mills, and not by creating an artificial scarcity.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 28.

IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISIONS.

Two decisions of an important military and political character were made last week in the local and State Courts of Pennsylvania. First, that a deserter from the American army is a felon at common law, and if he be shot by the guard of a Provost-Marshal while attempting to escape, such shooting is justifiable. Second, in the case of the seizure of the Jeffersonian newspaper, on an elaborate argument by WILLIAM B. REED against, and JOHN C. KNOX for the constitutionality of the Indemnity bill of March 3, 1863, it was decided by Hon. WM. STRONG, of the Supreme Bench, that that act was valid and constitutional.

REVENUE DECISION.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that where land is sold subject to ground rent, a stamp appropriate to the consideration of the deed by which the property is conveyed is the proper one. The rights of the ground landlord and of the owner of the ground rent are regarded as two different estates, and subject to sale and conveyance, and also to stamp duties, independent of each other. It is also decided that where a State is grantor in a deed of conveyance, the fiscal or executive office-executing the instrument is not obliged to affix a stamp. The instrument, however, is not the less subject to stamp duty, which must be paid by the grantee, and the stamp must be affixed by him. When there has been neglect to affix the stamp on an instrument heretofore made, the stamp may be yet affixed by either party to the instrument, or by any using it or having an interest in the subject.

CLAIMS IN THE SECOND AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

There are fruits of war ripening where the public do not see them. In the Second Auditor's Office lie 75,000 unsettled claims. Already they come in at the rate of ten thousand a month. To only register them, nine clerks are constantly employed. Fifty or sixty additional clerks will soon be installed in office. The Business Bureau, ably presided over as it is, has fallen a year behindhand.

EXCHANGE OF OFFICERS.

Five hundred rebel officers, confined at Fort Delaware, are to be sent immediately to City Point for exchange. Among them is Gen. CHURCHILL, who will be exchanged for Gen. WILLICH as soon as the prisoners reach Richmond. It is expected, also, that Gen. STOCKTON's release will be effected at the same time. Thirty-five of our exchanged officers arrived at City Point yesterday from Richmond. The rank and file have all been exchanged.

USE AND MISUSE OF REVENUE STAMPS.

From evidence, casually presented to-day to one gentleman in an hour and a half's intercourse with the heads of three bureaus, it is positively true that an attorney somewhere blunderingly affixed ninety dollars' worth of revenue stamps to a bond, for which one dollar's worth would have sufficed, and another wasted sixty dollars in like manner; and that a paymaster plastered his bond over with twelve dollars' worth of stamps, for which fifty cents would have been legally ample. Though the gain to the Government is enormous through this ignorance, it is exceeded by the loss the revenue sustains by the fraudulent reuse of stamps. The Commissioner will soon stifle this scoundrelism.

MINISTER TO BOLIVIA.

ALLEN G. HALL, editor of the Nashville Union, will probably be appointed Minister to Bolivia, in place of Judge CARTER, resigned.

THE BLACK SURGEON.

Dr. ANDREW, the black Surgeon commissioned in our army, has been assigned to duty in the contraband camp, this city. As soon as ULLMAN's negro brigade is formed, he will be attached to that.

THE FREEDMAN'S INQUIRY COMMISSION.

The American Freedman's Inquiry Commission—Dr. HOWE, ROBERT DALE OWEN and Col. JAMES McKAYE—appointed by the President to examine into the condition of the contrabands, and the practicability of organizing them into armies, after very thorough work here, have adjourned, with the intention of pursuing their investigation throughout the entire circle of our armies.

SENATOR MORGAN.

Senator MORGAN, of New-York, is now here for Gov. SEYMOUR, on business connected with the two-years' regiments.

PROPOSALS FOR HORSES.

Col. RUCKER, Chief Quartermaster here, invites proposals until MAY 4 for furnishing the Government two thousand artillery and cavalry horses, not less than fifteen hands high, and not more than eight years old, all to be rigidly inspected. Proposals from disloyal parties will not be considered. The oath of allegiance to accompany each proposition.

PARDONS BY THE PRESIDENT.

The President has pardoned the following persons: Jos. SHOEMAKER, of Pennsylvania, convicted of counterfeiting United States coin; NELSON VICKERY, of New-York, do.; and JAS. N. BURNS, of Missouri, convicted of treason.

BALL AT THE SPANISH LEGATION.

The Spanish Minister has his cards out for a ball to-morrow evening.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 28.

PASSAGE OF THE VICKSBURGH BATTERIES.

The Navy Department to-day received a letter from Rear-Admiral POREMS, dated April 17, giving a few particulars of the passage of the Vicksburgh batteries the evening previous, but not materially different from what has already been published. He adds:

"All the vessels were ready for service in half an hour after passing the batteries. An examination of the Indiana showed that she was much shattered. The rebels got her two 9-inch guns. One 11-inch gun was burst, and was lying on deck, and the others followerboard, and now lies alongside in nine feet of water."

THE ARMY POLICE.

It is understood that upon representations made to the War Department, from unquestionable authority, a mixed commission of military officers and civilians, has been appointed by the Secretary of War, to proceed at once to the West to examine into the operations of the army police in Tennessee and Kentucky and report to the War Department.

NAVAL.

The Bermuda, United States supply steamer, will leave Philadelphia for Port Royal and the Gulf Squadron on the 16th of May next.

THE TENTH MAINE MUSTERED OUT.

The Tenth Maine regiment has arrived here, having been mustered out of the service.

Obituary.

—Dr. JOHN ADAMS, formerly Principal of Phillips Academy, the well-known institution at Andover, Mass., died at Jacksonville, Ill., on April 24. Dr. ADAMS was the father of Rev. WILLIAM ADAMS, D. D., pastor of the Madison-square Presbyterian Church in this City.

THE WAR IN WESTERN VIRGINIA.

Reported Depredations on the Line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Guerrilla Cavalry at Rowlesburg and Altamont.

They Are Driven off by Our Troops.

A Large Rebel Force Reported to be Moving Westward.

THE PENNSYLVANIANS EXCITED AGAIN.

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, April 28.

There are many wild stories afloat here to-day of rebel depredations in Western Virginia, on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Information, believed to be reliable, states that some guerrilla cavalry penetrated to Rowlesburg and Altamont, Western Virginia, but were driven off, and no damage was done to the road or Government property.

There are also reports of a rebel force having marched westward, but it is believed that this movement has been checkmated by our troops.

REPORTS FROM WHEELING.

From the Wheeling Intelligencer, April 27.

Since Friday night, the city has been filled with rumors of a rebel advance on Beverly, and this side of there. We did not give any currency to them on Saturday morning, because nothing of a definite character could be ascertained, and even up to this writing, it has been impossible to obtain any accurate information. It appears to be pretty well settled that a considerable rebel force, chiefly cavalry, has made a sudden advance on our force occupying Beverly. Col. LAZEAR has fallen back to Buckhannon. The latest intelligence that seems to be reliable, up to the present hour of writing, is that the rebels have advanced their outside pickets to Philippi, 23 miles this side of Beverly, and about 16 miles from Grafton. The rebel force is reported as consisting of JENKINS's, BILL HARRAR's and JERR. JENKINS' gangs, numbering, it is said, between four and five thousand, with half a dozen pieces of artillery. We believe there is but little reliability in these statements. No doubt the numbers of the enemy have been greatly exaggerated by alarmed couriers.

We are assured that ample and seasonable provision has been made to check any further advance of the rebels toward the railroad. They have come as far as they will be able to. There is every facility for throwing in reinforcements, and they will be there long before this reaches the reader.

It is said our commanders are not averse to having them come still farther down the Tygart's Valley, as it would place them in a position from which it would be hardly possible to retrace their steps, as we have forces that flank them on more sides than one.

LATER.

Since the above was written we have come in possession of statements in regard to the condition of affairs down the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad that are pretty well authenticated, and seem to approximate the truth.

A gentleman who came in on last evening's train states that in reply to a dispatch which he sent to Grafton from Moundsville, he was informed that a rebel force had come into Oakland and another at Rowlesburgh since the train passed those points; that they had cut the wires at Oakland and were committing depredations on the road, and that fighting in the woods was then going on at Rowlesburgh. The same gentleman states that nothing definite was known at Grafton of Col. LAZEAR's command, but it was the impression of Col. WILKINSON that it was cut off somewhere between Beverly and Philippi.

We also learn that intelligence of a reliable character has been received from other sources, going mainly to confirm these statements.

Col. LAZEAR's exact situation is not known, but this fact alone proves that he is cut off. Whether between Beverly and Buckhannon, or between Beverly and Philippi, is not known. It is said he burned the Government stores at Beverly before leaving there, but how this should be known and nothing be known of his present situation, we cannot see. It appears certain, at least, that all his communications are cut off, if nothing worse has happened.

REPORTS FROM BALTIMORE.

The Baltimore American, of Monday evening, gives the following account of these movements:

"We learn that the rumors of rebel approaches to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which have been in circulation for a day or two past, assumed quite a serious and threatening aspect on Sunday evening. During the day, on Sunday, movement of troops to the number of eight thousand were made on the road to strengthen points west of Cumberland, at which attacks were threatened, and two regiments left Baltimore to take the places of those that were moved further westward.

On Sunday night two companies of rebel cavalry made their appearance at Rowlesburgh, near the Kingwood Tunnel, but were driven off, and it is thought, did not succeed in burning the Cheat River Bridge. The bridge was safe on Sunday night, but nothing definite has been heard from it this morning.

There has also been a rebel force, for two days past, not far from Clarksburgh, threatening an advance on the road.

A rebel force of about four thousand men, under Gen. BOTS, left the vicinity of Winchester early last week, and, it is thought, have gone westward for a raid on the railroad. Measures were immediately taken for checkmating them, and but little further difficulty is anticipated.

We also learn that on Sunday morning the force that appeared at Rowlesburgh during the night were at Altamont, this side of Oakland, and committed some depredations there, seizing a locomotive and train, which they started away with, declaring their intention to go to Oakland and Rowlesburgh.

However, the intelligence from the road this morning is that the whole rebel movement has been checkmated, and that the entire road is in our possession, the rebels being driven off at every point.

AN EXCITED PENNSYLVANIA REPORT.

HARRISBURGH, Tuesday, April 28.

The rebels in considerable force have marched on and captured Morgantown, Va., and threaten Pennsylvania with invasion. The force is commanded by the rebel Gen. JENKINS, and is said to be composed of four thousand cavalry. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is destroyed between Cumberland and Grafton.

The rebel flag was floating from the court-house in Morgantown at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Men, women and children are flying in all directions.

Pittsburgh is thought to be in danger, though the Cheat River not being fordable, it will probably prevent the rebels coming much further North.

This information comes from a reliable source, and is dated Uniontown, Penn.

SECOND DISPATCH.

The reports from the southwestern part of the State are very contradictory, owing to the excitement among the inhabitants.

There seems to be no doubt that the rebels have taken Morgantown, and are there in force. Some reports make them 6,000, others 4,000.

They are, commanded by Gen. JENKINS, who has made himself famous by his cavalry exploits in Western Virginia. Federal troops are in motion to intercept him.

Artillery will be sent from here immediately, and as the authorities at Washington are fully informed of the affair, everything will be done to drive out the invaders. There is no excitement on the subject here.

NO CAUSE OF ALARM.

From the Agent of the Associated Press.

The rumor that rebels are marching on Wheeling or Pittsburgh rests upon the fact that a force has appeared at Morgantown, Va., on the Monongahela River, and near the State line of Pennsylvania. No fears are entertained for the safety of either Pittsburgh or Wheeling.

It is not probable that the rebel force, which reached Morgantown, Western Virginia, will proceed any further North.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD.

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, April 28.

This road can now be regarded as entirely safe. No property was taken in the recent rebel raid, nor was any of the road injured except a small bridge near Oakland, which was slightly damaged, and which is now repairing, and will be ready for the passage of the regular trains to-morrow morning. Through trains, both East and West, will then be reand passengers. Large Government forces have been moved to all important points on the line, which guarantee ample and permanent protection. The delay of the prompt and regular working of the road will not exceed 24 hours.

REMOVAL OF SPECIE.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, April 28.

A large amount of specie reached Pittsburgh from Wheeling last night.

LATE REBEL NEWS.

Extracts from the Richmond Papers of Monday.

ACTIVE OPERATIONS IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Richmond papers of Monday contain the following news:

FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

OGLETHORPE, Saturday, April 25.

Our cavalry engaged the enemy, yesterday, at Birmingham. The fight lasted two hours and a half. The enemy was completely routed, with 15 killed and a large number wounded. Col. HARCH, of the Twenty-fifth Iowa, was seen to fall from his horse, which ran into our lines and was captured. Our loss was one killed and twenty wounded. The destruction of a bridge prevented pursuit.

CHATTANOOGA, Saturday, April 25.

Passengers by train report that Gen. DODGE's Yankee force, 1,000 strong, have advanced ten miles toward East Tuscumbia. Col. ROBY is fighting and retreating toward reinforcements.

TULLAHOMA, Friday, April 24.

Further advices from McMinnville represent that the enemy have destroyed several bridges, burnt the cotton factory, the depot buildings, one engine and three cars, and then retreated towards Murfreesboro.

Second Dispatch.

TULLAHOMA, Friday, April 24.

The word to-day is everybody to the front. There was no movement there on the part of the enemy. Our troops are in spirit and confident. It is not believed that the Yankees will dare to make an attack.

Advices from Tuscumbia to-day state that three regiments of Yankees are advancing. They will be held in check by Col. ROBY, with his cavalry.

Third Dispatch.

TULLAHOMA, Saturday, April 25.

The enemy are falling back. All is quiet in front.

From the Dispatch of the 27th we take the following:

"A telegram received in the city yesterday, says the Federals were advancing on the Jackson (Miss.) and Meridian Railroad, and had burned the stone bridge on that road."

AFFAIRS IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Enquirer, relative to affairs in South Carolina, says:

"There are some indications that the Yankees are moving in South Carolina. It is supposed that their intention is to make a raid in the vicinity of Coosawatchie, probably to attempt to destroy the railroad between Savannah and Charleston."

DESTRUCTION OF A BLOCKADE RUNNER.

SAVANNAH, Friday, April 24.

The sloop Eagle, laden with cotton and tobacco, outward bound, was beached and fired, in Warsaw Sound, Thursday night, to prevent her capture by the blockaders. The crew are safe.

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

Important Movements of the Rebels in Front of Gen. Rosecrans.

MURFREESBORO, Tuesday, April 28.

The rebels are reported as having made important movements on our front, materially changing the situation, whether in reply to ours on McMinnville, or that the rebels are weary waiting for us to advance, is not known. It is known that BRAGG has been reinforced by one brigade from Mobile and a Mississippi regiment from Vicksburgh was sent back from Chattanooga. A force has reinforced Manchester to strengthen the rebel right. One brigade went back from Shelbyville to Tullahoma. JOHNSON is reported to have moved his headquarters to Shelbyville. CRITTENDEN's division is at Guy's Gap, twelve miles from Murfreesboro, on the Shelbyville and Triune road, and there are two brigades at Bell Buckle, while a third force is said to be at Doolittle Pike. For some days past it has been believed in rebel camps that, if ROSECRANS did not advance, BRAGG would attack. Our authority says BRAGG has 75,000 men. There is no confirmation of the reported death of BRAGG.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Tuesday, April 28.

One hundred prisoners, captured at McMinnville, reached here late last night.

Preparations are being made to send all citizens South who refuse to take the oath. They will leave in a few days.

All is quiet at Franklin and Murfreesboro.

The river is falling. There is three and a half feet of water on the shoals.

THE WAR IN MISSOURI.

Gen. McNeil in Full Pursuit of the Rebel Forces—A Large Number of Prisoners Captured.

CAIRO, Tuesday, April 28.

The affair at Cape Girardeau is at an end. The rebels are in full retreat on the Bloomfield road, with McNEIL in close pursuit. It was Gen. McNEIL's intention to send a force to the enemy's rear, for the purpose of destroying the bridge over the White River, thus cutting off their retreat. Should he succeed, most of the rebel force will be captured.

Fears are entertained that the National force from New-Madrid, which numbers but two thousand men, may be overrun by the rebels, who are 7,000 strong. All of Gen. McNEIL's pursuing forces are mounted. In the attack on their camp Saturday night 500 or 600 prisoners were taken, and a number killed and wounded. The rebels have completely stripped the country through which they have passed, making no difference between friend or foe.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Tuesday, April 28.

The following has been received at the headquarters of the army:

ST. LOUIS, April 27, 1863.

Maj.-Gen. H. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief:

Gen. VANDEVER came upon the enemy's rear near Cape Girardeau last night, and attacked and routed him, taking a large number of prisoners, horses, arms, &c. The enemy retreats toward Bloomfield in great disorder, pursued by the victorious and combined forces of Gens. VANDEVER and McNEIL. S. R. CURTIS, Major-General.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, April 27.

Arrived, ship Garibaldi, from New-York.

Sailed, United States war steamer Saginaw, for a cruise.

The State Legislature adjourned at noon to-day.

The following are among the bills approved:

Legalizing and providing the means for enforcing contracts payable in gold, so that paper cannot be used to pay debts with where coin was promised.

Appropriating from the State Treasury $10,000 per mile toward building fifty miles of the Pacific Railroad.

This is additional to the two millions proposed to be voted by the counties along the line of the road.

Providing for the survey of the eastern boundary of the State.

Providing for uniforming and equipping the militia organization, and appropriating $100,000 therefor.

The steamer Oregon, from Manzilan, brought $120,000 in treasure, and a large number of specimens from of silver ore.

The Medical Director of this Department, Dr. GURNEY, has had all the wounded removed from Suffolk to the Hampton Hospitals, where they receive the best of care, and are all doing well.

Major-Gen. DIX and Staff left this morning for Yorktown.

Fifty rebel prisoners arrived this morning on the Baltimore boat Louisiana from Fort McHenry. About 30 of them are wounded. They were sent to Fort Norfolk to await the next flag-of-truce boat for City Point.

OPERATIONS ON THE FLORIDA COAST.

Official Reports Received at the Navy Department.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 28.

The Navy Department has received dispatches from Acting Rear-Admiral BAYLY, commanding the Eastern Gulf Blockading Squadron, dated Key West, April 21, from which it appears that he directed Lieutenant Commanding ENGLISH to proceed on the gunboat Sagamore, accompanied by the two armed launches of that vessel, to Cedar Keys, there to arrange the details of a boat-expedition, under the immediate command of Lieutenant Commanding McCALEB, for the purpose of securing the coast between the Suwanee River and the Anclote Keys, where it was believed that many small craft were engaged in evading and violating the blockade. A launch and cutter from the Sagamore, and others from the Fort Henry, together with an ambulance-boat, were added to the force, and the whole proceeded direct to Bayport, while the Sagamore remained in the offing to prevent the escape of the rebel vessels. The main object of the expedition, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, was handsomely accomplished. The sloop Helen, of Crystal River, loaded with corn, was burned, and then the boats made a movement toward a large schooner at anchor inside, loaded with cotton, said to amount to 300 bales; but were arrested by the fire of a two-gun battery on the shore, and of a goodly number of riflemen concealed in the wood. A brisk engagement of half an hour ensued, and the rebels were driven from their guns and rifle-pits with some loss. Fortunately the enemy's aim was so wild, that their shot went mostly over the heads of our party, and but one man was hurt on our side, and he not seriously. This little action seems to have been conducted with coolness and judgment, and to have been fought with spirit and bravery.

Meanwhile, the rebels had set fire to the schooner and the engagement was continued on our side by shelling the woods until all possibility of their extinguishing the flames had disappeared; when, as our object had been accomplished, as several of our guns had been disabled, and as the pilot gave warning the tide would soon leave the boats high and dry, they retired beyond the range of the battery, and waited there until the masts of the schooner fell, and until the vessel herself had entirely disappeared. The expedition then proceeded to the Chassahowitzka River; thence to Crystal River, and thence to the Homosassa, the Wetlacooche and the Waccasa; but the vessels were so much delayed by head winds and currents, and by the sluggishness of one of the launches, that they necessarily made but slow progress, only 75 miles in five days, and, consequently, the news of their coming preceded them, and, of course, nothing was found within their reach along the coast. The same causes prevented their effecting a surprise or extending their operations to the Suwanee River.

Master JNO. SWEASEL, commanding the bark Rosback, makes report of an unfortunate affair, in which Acting Master's JAMES FOSTER, and the launch's crew, of eleven men, were engaged, and which resulted in the death of two men, viz.: THOMAS KING and RALPH B. SNOW, and the wounding of six.

It seems that SWEASEL, having heard that a vessel was loading with cotton at St. Andrew's Bay, sent up his launch and crew to reconnoitre. For some reason FOSTER, in charge of the party, made a landing. The boat's crew were fired upon by a large guerrilla force with fatal effect, and barely escaped with their lives. FOSTER himself paying dearly for his incautiousness. As the report shows, the landing was ill-advised.

There is official confirmation of the report that our flags of truce were violated at Gadsden's Point, Florida, by rebels clothed in female apparel with blackened faces.

The Beauregard and Johnson, next day, were sent as near the battery as possible, and both vessels commenced firing on the town, hitting some of the houses, but what damage was done could not be ascertained.

The schooner Onward was cut out in Ostockney River by the boats of the United States bark Amanda. The work was gallantly performed with but few casualties. The rebels made a spirited resistance. The Expedition resulted in the destruction of their vessel.

The bark Gem of the Sea, on the 8th of April, captured the English schooner Maggie Fulton, of Nassau, from Green Turtle Bay, Abaco, while attempting to run the blockade at Indian River Inlet, East Florida, loaded with a general cargo.

The United States steamer Huntsville captured the Confederate sloop Minnie, with thirteen bales of cotton from the Ocilla River, Florida, bound to Matanzas.

Acting Lieutenant-Commander W. C. ROGERS communicates the fact of the capture of the British schooner Ascension, of and from Havana for the Suwanee River, with an assorted cargo. She was taken, after being fired upon several times, in a chase of two hours.

The schooner Tarsus was also captured. She sailed under British colors.

Among other captures on the Florida coast are the schooner Annie B., the British schooner Gipsey, and the schooner Mattie.

LATER FROM MEXICO.

Attack by Guerrillas on the Workmen upon the Railroad—A Number of Men Killed and Wounded—Plunder Secured by the Guerrillas—Slow Progress of the French.

By a passenger arrived at this port yesterday, (28th,) from Vera Cruz, in the bark Henry Trowbridge, we learn the following:

On the 31st of March, about 11 A.M., a force of about 700 guerrillas attacked the main camp of the Railroad Company, where there were about 500 men employed, taking the camp by surprise, and killing about 12 men and wounding 20. After the rest of the men made their escape by running toward the military camp at Tijeria and hiding in the woods, the guerrillas took all the mules, 35 or 40 in number, and loaded them with the stores of the camp, beds, blankets, &c., and demanded of Mr. HOGAN, the General Superintendent of the road, the keys of the safe. He accordingly handed them over, when they took all the cash, about $2,000.

After taking the camp and utterly destroying all except the buildings, the Chief of the guerrillas told him, Mr. HOGAN, that the Mexican Government had resolved to stop the progress of the road, and that all men after that notice would be killed if found working thereon, at the same time advising Mr. HOGAN not to allow himself or any of his men to be found there again.

During the night they routed and plundered all the camps along the road toward Tijeria. Among the wounded is Mr. DAVID KELLY, the time-keeper, shot through the left arm.

The road has progressed about 4½ miles from Tijeria, which distance Mr. HOGAN hastened on foot (having an horse left,) to notify the military forces at that place, and he soon had a force of about 200 soldiers on guard. One of them under cover of night, thinking he saw the guerrillas, fired, when another scene of terror occurred. The few laboring men who had stayed in camp, ran out to learn the cause of the firing, when the soldiers, taking them for the enemy, fired among them, killing and wounding 16 or 15 of them. This threw them in a state of consternation, and they (the men) hurried down the road to Vera Cruz. The Company had promised the men to keep a guard on the place, and were making preparations to resume work on the Monday following, (April 6.)

The plunder taken by the guerrillas amounted to about $12,000.

The following are some of the names of the men killed: Chas Flagg, Richard Wilson, Thos. Brady, Patrick Gard, John Cunningham, John McDonald.

The French are making very slow progress. About the middle of March they attacked a small fort on the outskirts of Puebla, and succeeded in capturing it, after sustaining the loss of 700 men.

The French had an immense quantity of stores at Vera Cruz, and, having no place to store them, a heavy storm came up destroying about $20,000 worth. They were receiving large reinforcements daily.

A Prize Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, April 28.

The prize schooner Clune, of Nassau, went ashore on Lewes Beach, near the Breakwater, Saturday night, and went to pieces. All hands were saved.

Proclamation.

WHEREAS, The President of the United States, in compliance with a resolution of the Senate, has issued his Proclamation setting apart Thursday, the 30th day of April, 1863, as a day of national humiliation, fasting and prayer; and, whereas, the scourge of civil war which is now desolating our country, and changing many of its happy homes into abodes of sorrow, renders such solemn service peculiarly appropriate at the present time:

Now, therefore, in official recognition of said Proclamation, and its just and timely admonitions to the nation, I do hereby request that all the public offices in this City be closed on that day, and that the people, refraining from all secular pursuits, devote themselves with humble and contrite spirits to the religious duties suitable for the occasion.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Mayoralty, at the City Hall in the City of New-York, this twenty-seventh day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.

From the Journal of Commerce.

EXCITING NEWS FOR THE DEAF.—An instrument called Dr. Von Eisenberg's Air Passage Expander and Regulator, a gigantic machine, weighing nearly five hundred pounds, about five feet in height, a most wonderful apparatus for restoring sight and hearing, has just arrived for Dr. Von Eisenberg, the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, and will be on exhibition at the Doctor's office, No. 816 Broadway, for a few days previous to its use. The instrument is constructed decidedly on the most scientific principles. To give a detailed description would require a greater space than we can now spare. Our Oculist and Aurist seems to do everything in the line of his profession on a gigantic scale. The new instrument for restoring hearing to the deaf and sight to the blind is so constructed that it cannot fail to open the most obstructed air passages. His new consulting rooms, No. 816 Broadway, are correspondingly magnificent, and his practice as Aurist and Oculist large and eminently successful.

From the New-York Evening Express, Feb. 16, 1863.

SENSATION AMONG THE DEAF.—The unrivaled skill of Dr. Von Eisenberg, the far-famed Oculist and Aurist, of No. 816 Broadway, has made quite a sensation among the Deaf and Blind by his wonderful cures, which attract the Deaf, Blind and those suffering from Chronic Catarrh, from all parts of the Union to his office. The number of his certificates of really wonderful cures swells daily. For the benefit of sufferers, we submit the following, which requires no comment:

NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.
JOHN TAYLOR,
No. 13 Livingston-st., Brooklyn.

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 22 South-st.

No. 183 MERCER-ST., NEW-YORK.

J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant.
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 6, 1862.

DR. VON EISENBERG—Dear Sir: Before taking leave of you, after your most successful operation on my ear, allow me to express my sincere thanks that, by your scientific surgical performance, I am enabled to hear distinctly, and enjoy a pleasure of which I have long been deprived—over a year. May you be rewarded by being enabled to perform many similar, to benefit other sufferers, and to your own emolument.

Allow me to present my kindest regards, and assure you of my grateful remembrance. Respectfully,
A. McDONALD REYNOLDS,
Captain Marines, United States.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ
NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, like that scaling over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures effected by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

IMPORTANT SALE OF ORIGINAL PAINTINGS,
BY
E. LEUTZE, Esq.,
the distinguished Historical Painter,
By D. W. IVES & CO., in the front gallery, at the Derby Fine Arts Institute, No. 625 Broadway, at 7½ o'clock, on THURSDAY EVENING, May 7,
We have the honor to announce the sale, as above, of the select and most recent works of Mr. Leutze, all of which are of great historical interest and importance. It is sufficient now to say, that being the latest works of this eminent artist, the public may be assured that they are also his best. This sale forms an opportunity for purchase which has never and may not again occur, owing to the increasing number of orders, governmental and private, now accumulating upon Mr. Leutze's hands.
Among the subjects will be found the original study of the celebrated picture "Westward the Star of Empire Takes its Way," "Lafayette in Prison visited by his Family," "Unexpected Friends," a very remarkable picture, "Spring and Sybils" a wonderful creation of the artist's genius, "Deserted Hall," "First of Waiting," "Entertaining the Messenger," "German Baron," "Gentleman of the Time of Charles Second," and many others. In addition to the above will be sold about thirty-five examples, of the highest order and entirely original, by the following
EMINENT AMERICAN ARTISTS:

Kensett,	Gignoux,	Gifford,
Hart,	Louis Lang,	Cropsey,
Mignot,	Chauncey,	Chapman,
Casilear,	Eastman Johnson,	Prof. Weir,
W. Page,	J. Kyle,	Haemer,
Blauvelt,	Loop,	Jones,
L. Terry,	G. Miller,	Mount,
Hinkley,	S. W. Edmunds,	Gignoux.

As items of special interest it may be mentioned that a most interesting
ORIGINAL PAINTING BY HENRY INMAN, representing "Washington as a Peace Maker," and a very beautiful LANDSCAPE BY THOMAS COLE,
are included in the catalogue. The whole collection will be on exhibition on and from Monday, May 14,
DAY AND EVENING,
until sale, and catalogues will be ready for delivery on Saturday.

WELCOME TO THE BRAVE.

Return of the Seventh and Eighth Regiments New-York Volunteers—A Hearty Welcome to them.

BROADWAY ALIVE WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Yesterday was one of the greatest gala days ever known among the German population of the Metropolis. The return of the Seventh and Eighth regiments called out not only their immediate friends, relatives and acquaintances, but, thousands upon thousands of their countrymen, together with a mass of all nationalities seldom gathered at such short notice. The uncertainty as to the hour of the arrival of the regiments, of course made the reception much of an impromptu affair, but, in heartiness, in cordiality, in the whole-souled congratulations which it elicited, it could hardly have been surpassed. The friends of the two regiments collected respectively at the Steuben House, Bowery, and at Dramatic Hall, Houston-street, early in the day, and left about three o'clock, with the expectation of meeting the returning regiments immediately upon their landing. But, they were a little late, as the veterans had already arrived at Jersey City, where, exactly at 3 o'clock the whistle of the locomotive was heard, and in a few moments the Italia dashed into the depot, amid the cheers and shouts of the people, heartily responded to by the soldiers. As the latter left the cars they endeavored to fold into line; their ranks, however, were soon broken by the mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts, rushing in eagerly, clasping their hands and, as might naturally be expected, embracing and kissing them. At last, with the greatest difficulty the men got on board the ferry-boat Dacey, which soon started for the New-York shore, amid the blowing of steam-whistles from the boats in the river, the lowering of colors, and cheers from the crews of the various vessels in the river, and the firing of salutes. As the boat touched the shores, the crowd outside the gates broke through all restraint, and rushing through the gangway, welcomed the soldiers with "three times three" rousing cheers. The "Seventh" at once formed in line in Cortlandt-street, and were received by a detachment of the Third New-York cavalry, and by them escorted through Broadway. They were soon followed by the Eighth, escorted by a delegation of German citizens. On the left hand of Col. (Prince) Salm Salm, of the Eighth, was Gen. Blenker, attired in citizens' dress. The meeting with the reception delegations in the angle formed by the junction of Park-row and Broadway, in front of the Astor House and Museum, was extremely interesting; for, soon after the arrival of the veterans at the front of the Museum, the head of the reception delegations made its appearance with a band of music, with bouquets, banners, ladies, war-worn veterans who had previously returned, citizen soldiers and citizens generally, to the number of thousands. Such a hurrahing and cheering as ensued baffle description. It was ordered that the reception procession should countermarch so as to take the lead in the triumphal march through the City, and a faint effort was made to carry out that programme. But the long pent-up feelings of separated friends could not be thus baffled. Crowds rushed from the ranks, and ran eagerly along the line of non-bonnet heroes to catch the familiar features of loved ones—familiar, though disguised with the hardships of two years' camp service, and bronzed by Summer suns and Winter storms. The reunions of the few moments thus occupied were enough to touch the heart of the most stoical bystander. It was the scene of human happiness—the rejoining of husband and wife, of brother and sister, of parents and children. All was happiness. Joy beamed on every face, and the air was rent with the acclamations of the participants.

A similar scene was enacted at the reception of the Eighth regiment in Cortlandt-street. Their escort had passed on to meet them, and none the less joyful events occurred as more friends and relatives found themselves reunited in health and strength. There was a general commingling of men, women and children, standards and crinoline, knapsacks and little boys, uniforms and black coats, in promiscuous confusion. The multiplicity and cordiality of the recognitions were quite inspiring—enough so to make one wish he had "gone for a soldier," in order to fully enjoy this most flattering reception.

It was after 4 o'clock when the order was given to march, and at that time the crowd from Cortlandt-street to the City Hall was as dense as was ever before experienced. Anon some belated mother dashed frantically through the mass, in her expectant joy on beholding her son. Soon a timid, but lusty maiden, half from the crowd, stepped eagerly forward to greet a well-known friend. All along the line of march, through Park-row, the Park, Broadway, Astor-place and the Bowery, the same scene of continued congratulations, of cordial reunions, was repeated. The popular enthusiasm was wrought to the highest pitch, and many were the encomiums bestowed on the hardy sons of Mars for their manly bearing.

So far as the returning soldiers could be distinguished from the mass of friends so inextricably intermixed with them, their appearance was decidedly creditable. They walked with steady ranks, with firm step, with pleasure-lit eyes, and with neatly packed knapsacks. True, the demands of routine had deprived them of their arms, but they looked hardly the less soldierly for that. For men who have braved the field of Bull Run, the terrible contests of the Peninsula, the campaign in Maryland, and the memorable campaign of Pope, they looked remarkably healthy. True, their ranks were sadly thinned, reduced to about half the numbers which filled their muster rolls two years since, and disease and death have chosen many shining marks. But those who were left were none the less hopeful, none the less loyal and patriotic, and none the less ready to fight for the old flag. Indeed, so far as could be gathered from casual conversations with the officers and men, there is a strong disposition to refight.

There is a powerful esprit de corps. The conscious pride with which the men regarded their war-worn colors was enviable indeed.

But how shall we describe the enthusiasm with which those colors were received by the people? Some gazed with reverential awe at the tattered folds of the national ensigns, the bullet-pierced shreds of the regimental colors, and the ribboned guidons. Never have the streets of New-York witnessed such a scene since the militia regiments came back after their three months term, or the New-York volunteers from Mexico. Wherever the colors came within sight of the multitudes they were greeted with cheer upon cheer, and the standard bearers seemed at every step to bear their treasures all the more proudly.

Nearly every soldier was a mark of observation. Either he had a cigar presented by some friend, or held his little boy by the hand, or joyfully lent his arm to some fair female, or supported an aged mother, or led a favorite dog that had shared his camp life, or wielded a Virginia stick, or guided a contraband. And such contrabands, as here and there dotted the ranks, are only to be found among the soldiers' camp. They were the centre of much comment, and seemed to enjoy their novel position as much as any.

The principal objects of interest were three Confederate battle-ensigns, captured at Antietam. The design is a blue St. Andrew's cross upon a red ground. Upon the cross are 21 stars, seven in each direction. Upon the flags are inscribed "Williamsburgh" and "Fair Oaks"—through which battles they had been successfully borne by the rebel regiments, from which they were taken. The names were inscribed upon them in compliance with the resolutions of Congress. The standards of both the Seventh and Eighth present a shattered and tattered appearance. Blood-stained and torn, they speak in language more forcible than words of the bloody fields over which they have been so nobly carried. The Seventh is commanded by Col. Von Schack, who entered the regiment as a Major. The regiment was in the battles of White Oak Swamp, Charles City Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Antietam and Fredericksburgh. In these various battles this regiment lost in killed, 14 officers and 180 enlisted men, and besides these there were wounded 11 officers and 450 men. There number was originally 35 officers and about 1,000 enlisted men.

The Eighth regiment numbered one thousand and fifty men; it has now six hundred members, of whom it is said two hundred and twenty marched with it when it entered the field. The number killed in battle, however, has been but one hundred and fifty, though its losses in wounded have been very heavy. This regiment was in the first battle of Bull Run, and its friends derive much satisfaction from the fact that it was one of those which covered the retreat on that occasion.

We need not follow the brave fellows to the most welcome and bountiful collations which they relished, the flowing lager, the ponderous pipes—not pipes of peace that gladdened them on their arrival at their respective headquarters. They were entertained with the cordial hospitality for which the Germans are celebrated, and partook of the feast with a gusto such as can only be imagined by those who have participated in the delights of "hard tack" and "salt junk," and "Sutlers' pies" and "Commissary whisky," for two years. Let us hope that the other regiments to return will be received with equal hospitality, and equal appreciation of the service which they too have rendered the cause of the Union.

RETURN OF THE TENTH REGIMENT.

The Tenth Regiment of Volunteers will arrive in the City at an early hour this morning.

The Thirty-seventh regiment New-York National Guard will parade in full fatigue, at No. 594 Broadway, this day, at ten o'clock A. M., to receive the Tenth regiment New-York Volunteers, Col. Bennie. By order of Col. Rooke, A. G. Montgomery, Jr., Adjutant.

ORDER REGARDING RETURNING REGIMENTS.

War Department, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, April 24, 1863.

General Orders No. 99.—Volunteer regiments about to be discharged will, at the expiration of their term of service, be returned to the States in which they were raised, and there promptly paid and mustered out. They will turn over their arms and equipments before leaving the army in which they are serving. The Quartermaster's Department will furnish transportation, and the Subsistence Department furnish subsistence up to the time of the final payment of the troops. The Paymaster-General will cause them to be paid immediately on their arrival at their respective States, and before they disperse.

By order of the Secretary of war.

(Signed,) E. D. TOWNSEND, Ass't Adjt.-General.

THE ALABAMA AGAIN.

A Supply of Powder and Coal Received by Them at Ponce, P. R.—The Capture of the Ship Morning Star.

The British brig Green Pearl, of Windsor, N. S., Dexter, from Ponce, P. R., 16th instant, arrived at this port yesterday morning. Capt. Dexter reports: The Confederate steamer Alabama arrived off the harbor of Ponce on the evening of the 7th inst., and sent a schooner under into port for powder and coal, and was supplied from by the Spanish authorities. She sailed same night.

The bark Gen. Cass, of Boston, Hazeltine, from Palermo Feb. 20, and Gibraltar March 2, also arrived at this port this morning, and reports: 8th inst., lat. 37° 40', lon. 30° 10', was boarded by a boat from the ship Morning Star, of Boston, from Calcutta for London, who reported that she had been captured by the Confederate steamer Alabama in lat. 3° north, and released after giving bonds to the amount of $50,000.

Amusements.

Grand Concert To-Night.—At Irving Hall, to-night, Mr. Walter B. Jonsson, the organist of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, gives a grand concert, assisted by Mme. D'Angri, Mr. William Castle, Miss Brainard, Mr. S. C. Campbell and Mr. Schreiber. The programme is rich and varied, and aside from the attractions offered by the eminent assistants, the youthful débutant will present evidences of genius in his specialty, for which his provincial reputation is already great.

Laura Keene in Brooklyn.—Last night Miss Keene's company opened the Academy of Music to a full house, with the "Colleen Bawn." Miss Keene, Miss Ione Burke, and Messrs. Walcot, DalY and Lewis, were in admirable mood and temper, and the success of the undertaking was fully established. To-night the same bill will be given.

Gottschalk in Brooklyn.—On Saturday Mr. Gottschalk, assisted by a large array of talent, will give a grand matinée at the Academy.

The Remains of Col. Charles.

Yesterday, the flags on the City Hall were half-mast in honor of the deceased, Col. Charles. The Governor's Room was visited by numerous friends, and also citizens who formerly knew the Colonel, either personally or by reputation. The body was guarded by Co. A, Seventy-first regiment, (Light Guard) of which regiment Col. Charles, when living, was a member. The guard were uniformed in the light coat and pants worn by the regiment before the rebellion.

The coffin bears a silver plate, with the following inscription:

"Col. Edmund Cone Charles,
Died April 23, 1863,
aged 41 years.
From the effects of wounds received at the Battle of Glendale, Jan. 29, 1863, one of the Seven Days' Battles."

The funeral arrangements have been completed, and will be of an imposing character.

Naval.

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN IRON-CLAD ARMOR.

The first practical lesson taught by the fight off Charleston is to be applied to the iron-clad Roanoke. Although her turrets are already covered with solid plates of iron about eleven inches thick, she is to have a new armor over them, and yesterday preparations were made at the Brooklyn Navy-yard to commence the work of putting it on. The new idea is this: Three-inch iron plates are to cover some wooden or softer substance, which is to go between the huge plate on the turrets and the outside surface. It is said that cotton, or rope-yarns, or something of a similar character will be used for the filling in, thus rendering it almost impossible for projectiles to penetrate through the turrets themselves. Balls frequently bent, and, in some instances, split the armor of the iron-clads under fire, and it is now deemed best to protect even the most formidable ball by an outward guard such as that described. In the case of the Roanoke there is a probability that the external protection will be susceptible of being put on and taken off at pleasure. Officers, yesterday, took the dimensions of the plates required and no time will be lost in preparing them. Of course the vessel will not be able to take her place off the Narrows so soon as was expected. It is not known to what extent the new theory will be adopted in the other vessels now on the stocks.

The Broadway Injunction Against the Mayor, Aldermen, &c.—It is Discontinued.

COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Hilton.

Hughes et al. vs. The Mayor, Aldermen, &c.—This was the return day of the injunction issued to restrain official action on the part of the defendants in respect to the Broadway railroad.

The matter was now discontinued by consent.

The National Finances.

Philadelphia, Tuesday, April 28.

Jay Cook, General Subscription Agent, reports the sale of $2,000,000 5-20s to-day, distributed as follows: New-York, $750,000; Boston and New-England, $500,000; Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, $550,000; Ohio, $60,000; Wisconsin, $10,000; Illinois, $12,000; Kentucky, one person, $20,000; Maryland, $20,000; Michigan, $20,000; New-Jersey, Indiana and Missouri, $52,000. The sales were restricted in a great measure by a delay in furnishing bonds, which the Registry Department is using every effort to overcome. Every day brings subscriptions from near districts, and while it increases the work of the Department, it serves the double purpose of supplying means to crush the rebellion, and affords more evidence of the loyalty of districts formerly thought to be doubtful.

Arrivals in this City.

Senator S. C. Pomeroy, Kansas; the Hons. T. A. Scott, Philadelphia and E. P. Walton, Vermont; Judge Miller, Hudson; W. H. Carryl and family, Philadelphia; John Hyde, England, and John Gardiner, Ohio, are among the arrivals at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Com. Ringgold, U. S. N.; the Hons. J. P. Hale, New-Hampshire and B. P. Johnson, Albany; Maj. J. A. Bolles, Fortress Monroe; Capt. G. S. Blodgett, U. S. N., and A. Van Veehten, Albany, are at the Astor House.

Gen. P. R. Foulke, U. S. A.; Judge O'Brien and Col. R. S. Mathews, Baltimore; Hamilton G. Faunt and R. W. Luthan, Washington, D. C.; Geo. R. Phelps and C. C. Flagg, Rhode Island, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

The Hon. R. C. Winthrop and daughter, Boston; G. G. Howland and wife, Astoria; Prof. Elliott, Hartford; and Jas. Roosevelt, Hyde Park, are at the Brevoort House.

D. Powell, England; Geo. O. Edwards, Cambridge; Dr. W. D. Stewart, U. S. Vols.; and Sam. Leonard, Phila, are at the Everett House.

Chamber of Commerce.—A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this day, (Wednesday,) at one o'clock, to hear from Mr. C. F. Hall some account of his Arctic explorations, and some views in reference to their interest to the commercial community.

As pensive and alone I sat,
Intently viewing my old hat,
It seemed as if a voice had said,
"That hat's too shabby for your head;
Its day is past—though true enough,
'Twas made by Knox of first-rate stuff—
Knox has no equal as a Hatter"
Thought I—that's just "what's the matter."

The dogs at Barnum's are drawing crowds. The show of choice animals is fine. To-day the fancy will be on hand; their favorites, bull dogs, mastiffs, bull terriers, Scotch terriers, &c., are the specialty, while choice specimens of every breed will also be seen. Dramatic performances take place at 2 and 7½ o'clock P. M. See Museum advertisement.
